ISAIAH.

Here begynneth the prolog in the book of Ysaye, the prophete[a].

No man, whan the profetes he shal seen with versis[b] to ben discriued, in metre eyme he[c] hem anent[d] the Ebrues to ben bounden, and any thing[e] lic to han of Salmes, or of the werkus of Salomon; but that in Demostene and Tullio it is wont to ben do, that bi dyuyseouns, and vnder distincciouns thei ben[f] writen, the whiche forsothe in prose, and not in vers[ff] wryten. Wee forsothe, to the profit of rederes purueyende, the newe remenyng with a newe maner of writing han 'distinctly write[g]. And first, of Isaie it is to wite[h], that in his sermoun he is wys; forsothe as[i] a noble man, and of curteis fair speche, ne any thing is mengd of cherlhed in his faire speche. Wherfore it falleth, that the translacioun shal not moun kepe the flour of his sermoun, biforn othere. Theraftir also this is to be leid to, that not more[k] he is to be seyd a profete, than euaungelist. So forsothe alle the mysteries of Crist[l] 'and the[m] chirche[mm] to cleer,' or cleerli[n], he pursuede, that not hym thou weene of thyng to come to profecien, but of the[o] thingis[p] passid[q] storie[r] to weue. Wherfore I eyme the Seuenty Remenoures that tyme not to han[s] wold the sacramens of ther beleeue to shewe ful clerly to the hethene, lest hoeli[t] to dogges, and margarites to swyn thei ȝeeue. The whiche whan this making ȝee shul rede, of hem[u] ȝee shul taken heed[v], 'or perceyue[w], hid[x] thing[y]. Ne I vnknowe of hou myche trauaile it be the profetes to vnderstonden, ne liȝtly any man to moun demen of the remenyng, but if he schal[z] vnderstonden[zz] byfore he schal reden; wee also to ben opene to the bitingus of manye men, the whiche bi enuye styrende, that that thei moun not han, thei dispisen[a]. Thanne I witende and sleeȝ, in to the flaume putte the hond; and nerthelatere[b] this of noȝesum rederes I preȝe, that as Grekes after the Seuenty translatoures, Aquylam, and Symachum, and Theodocian thei reden, or for studie of ther doctrine, or that the Seuenty more they vnderstonde of the togidere leiynge[c] of hem, so and these namely oon[d] remenour aftir the rathere vouche thei saf to han. Rede thei rathere, and aftirward dispise they; lest thei ben seen not of dom, but of presumpcioun of hate vnknowen thyngus to dampnen. Forsothe Isaie profeciede in Jerusalem and in Jewerie, not ȝit the ten lynages led in to caitifte; and off euer either rewme, now togidere, now[e] seuerendely, he ordeynede the profecie. And thoȝ[f] other while he bihold to the present storie, and aftir the caitifte of Babiloyne he betocne[g] the aȝeencomyng of the puple in to Jewerie, nerthelatere al his bisynesse is of the cleping

Here endith the prolog, and now begynneth the book of Ysaie, the prophete[m].

Here bigynneth a general prolog for alle the bokis of profetis suynge[a].

As seynt Jerom seith in the prolog of Ysaie, Isaie is ful witti and ful opyn in his writyng in Ebreu, thouȝ the translacioun in to Latyn miȝte not kepe the[b] fairnesse of speche. Isaye is worthi to be seid not oneli a profete, but more, a gospellere, for he declarith so opynli the mysteries[c] of Crist and of hooli chirche, that thou gesse hym not oneli[d] to ordeyne a[e] profesie of thing to comynge, but to ordeyne a storie of thingis passid. Ysaie profesiede in Jerusalem and in Judee, whanne the ten lynagis of Israel weren not ȝit led in to caitiftee; and he ordeyneth a[f] profesie of euer either rewme, sum tyme of both togidere, sum tyme of ech bi it silf. And whanne Ysaie biholdith sum tyme to the present storie, and signefieth the comynge aȝen of the puple in to Judee aftir the caitifte of Babiloyne, netheles al his bisynesse, that is, principal entent, is of the clepyng of hethene men, and of the comyng of Crist. Al this is the sentence of Jerom in the prolog of[g] Ysaie. Here it is to vndurstonde, that Isaie bigan to profesie bifore that the ten lynagis weren led in to caitiftee of Assiriens, as Jerom seith here; but he profesiede aftir this caitiftee, aftir Ezechies deth, in the tyme of Manasses, as it is seid in the fourthe book of Kyngis the[h] twentithe chapitre[i], and in many mo places. This seith 'a postille[k] on Jeroms prolog on Ysaie. For as Ebreis seien, and Lire witnessith on the firste chapitre of Isaie, Manasses ordeynede and demyde Isaye to be sawid with ynne a cedre tree, that closid hym with ynne it silf bi myracle, whanne Manasses hadde demed hym vniustli to deth[l]. Also alle profetis that ben not teld opynli in the text, whanne and in what tyme thei profesieden, profesieden in the same tyme in which the profetis goynge next bifore profesieden, that ben teld in the text vndur whiche kyngis and tymes thei profesieden, as Jerom seith in his prologe on the twelue Profetis, and it is sette in the bigynnyng of Osee. Comynli alle the derk places of the[m] profetis moun be vndurstondun liȝtli bi thre reulis. The firste is this, that the principal entent of the profetis is to declare the mysterie of Cristis incarnacioun, passioun, resurreccioun, ascensioun, and the[n] comyng to[o] the general doom, and the pupplischyng of the gospel, and the conuercioun of hethene men, and the tribulacioun of hooli chirche in this lijf, and the blis of heuene therfor[p]. The secounde reule is this, that the profetis warnen the puple of Jewis of her grete synnes, and exciten hem to do penaunce; and thanne thei schulen gete remyssioun of her synnes, and grace in present tyme, and glorie with outen ende; ellis thei schulen haue tribulacioun in this lijf, and peyn with outen ende. The thridde reule is this, that the profetis rehersen ofte[r] benefices ȝouun of God bifor to the Jewis, to counforte hem to ȝyue credence to goodis bihiȝt in her profesies; and thanne the stories of Moises lawe, ether[s] of Josue, Judicum, Regum, and Paralipomenon, and of othere historial[t] bookis schulen be wel lokid; and schortli to seie, the profetis schulen be expouned bi the text of Moises lawe, and of othere historial bookis of the Elde Testament, ether bi the text of the Newe Testament. The literal vndurstondyng of hooli scripture is the ground of al gostli vndurstondyng therof, that is, of allegorik, of moral, and of anagogik. No goostli vndurstondyng is autentik[u], no[v] but it be groundid in the text opynli, ether in opyn resoun, suynge of principlis, ether reulis of feith[w], as seynt Austin witnessith[x] opynli in his pistle to Vincente, Donatiste, and in his book of Soliloquies, and Jerom on Jonas, and Lire on the bigynnyng of Genesis, and in many placis of hooli scripture, and Ardmakan in his book of Questiouns of Armenyes. Therfor men moten seke the treuthe of the text, and be war of goostli vndurstondyng, ether moral fantasie, and ȝyue not ful credence therto, no but it be groundid opynly in the text of hooli writ, in o place or[y] other, ethir in opyn resoun, that may not be auoidid; for ellis it wole as likyngli be applied to falsnesse as to treuthe, and it hath disseyued grete men in oure daies, bi ouer greet trist to[z] her fantasies. Literal ether historial vndurstondyng techith what thing is don; allegorik techith what we owen for[a] to bileue; moral ether tropologik techith what we owen to do to fle vices, and kepe vertues; anagogik techith what we owen to[b] hope of euerlastynge meede in heuene. Of these foure vndurstondyngis 'schal be[c] seid pleynlier, 'if God wole[d], on the bigynnyng of Genesis. Also it is to wyte, that the profetis speken sum tyme bi figuratif speche, and[e] liknen men to vnresonable beestis, and clepen men bi figuratif speche, liouns, beris[f], culueris, and ofte[g] othere vnresonable beestis, for certeyn synnes whiche thei vsen acordynge with the kyndis of vnresonable beestis; as men ben clepid liouns for pride, ether raueyn, ether sum other synne; and sum tyme a lioun signefieth Crist, for his power, and sum tyme a lioun signefieth the deuel, for tirauntrie and raueyn; and men ben clepid beeris, for gredynesse ether glotonye, and mulis, for letcherie; and so of othere beestis and othere synnes. Men ben clepid culueris sum time for madnesse, and sum tyme for innocence, symplenesse, and charite. Bi these reulis and bisi studiyng of the text, men moun liȝtli vndurstonde the derk placis of profetis; and algatis loke wel that the sentence takun of the text be trewe, and acorde[h] with charyte, and thanne it is the sentence of the Hooli Goost, as seynt Austyn seith.

2 man[u], seith the Lord. Alarge[v] the place of thi tente, and the skynnes of thi tabernacle strecche out; ne spare thou, longe maac thi litle cordis, and thi nailes mac
3 fast. At the riȝt forsothe and at the lift thou shalt persen; and thi sed Jentiles shal eritagen, and desert cites wonen in.
4 Wile thou not dreden, for thou shalt not be confoundyd, ne shamen. Forsothe it shal not shamen thee; for of the confusioun of thi ȝouthe thou[w] shalt forȝete, and of the repref of thi widewhed thou 5 shalt recorde no more. For lordshipen shal of thee that made thee; the Lord of ostes hys name; and thin aȝeen biere, the[x] holi of Irael, the God of al erthe shal be 6 clepid. For as a womman forsaken and moornende in spirit, clepede thee the Lord, and a wif fro the ȝouthe cast awei.
7 The Lord thi God seide, At a poynt in a litil I forsoc thee, and in grete mercy

JEREMIAH.

[Prologue on Jeremiah[a].]

This profete Jeremye tolde openli thingis to comynge, and not in derk speche, as Ysaie and othere profetis; for he telde vtterli the destruccioun of Jerusalem to be doon of Caldeis, and the cite and the hous of God to be brent with fijr; but warnynge hem bifore to leue her synnes, and her idolatrie, and to come aȝen to the trewe wurschiping of God, schewinge the grete merci of God, not willinge ony man to perische, that wole come to amendement.

Prolog to Jeremie, prophete[a].

JEREMYE, the profete, to whom this prologe is ascriued, as anent[b] the Ebrues is seen to ben booistousere than the sermoun of Isaie, and of Osee, and than[c] othere profetes; but in wittes he is euene, sithen that in the same spirit he profeciede; but the symplenesse of speche fel to hym of the place in whiche he was born. Forsothe he was of Anatoth, that vnto this dai is a litil town, bi thre myle beende fro Jerusalem; a prest of prestus, and in his moder wombe halewid; thurȝ his maidenhed halewende to the chirche of Crist a gospel man. This a child bigan to profecien; and the caitifte of the chef cite, and of Jewerie, not only in spirit, but and with eȝen of[d] flesh beheeld. Now forsothe Assiries hadden translatid the ten lynagis of Irael in to Meedis; now the townes of Jentiles weldeden the londis of them. Wherfore in Jewere onli[e] and Beniamyn he profeciede; and of his cite the fallingus with fourefold abece, he weilede, the whiche wee[f] han ȝolden[g] to the[h] mesure of metre `and vers[i]. Therfore the ordre of viseouns, that anent Grekes and Latynes outerli is confoundid, to the rathere feith wee han amendyd. The boc forsothe of Baruch, his notorie, that anent the Ebrues is not rad, ne had, wee han laft; for alle these thingus curses of enemys abidende, to whom nede is me to answern bi my werkis a rowe. And this I suffere, for ȝee constreynen, O! Paule and Eustoche; but more riȝt it were, to the shorting of euel, to putte mesure to the wodnesse of them bi my silence, than to eche dai sum what of newe thing writende, to[k] terre[l] the wodnesse of the enuyouse.

if he shul condempne, that he seith biforn, that thei be delyuered by penaunce, that weren dampned bi gilte. Nynyuytes weren dampned synneres of[o] God; ȝit forsothe thre daȝes, and Nynyue was to be turned vp so doun; God wolde not with silence punshe condempned men, but, ȝyuende to them place of penaunce, sente an Ebru profete, that shulde seyn, ȝit thre daȝes, and Nynyue shal be turned vp so doun; lest persheden, that is, that weren dampned, but doende penaunce, thei shulden purchacen mercy. Sodomytes also[p] and Gomorreis now to hard torment weren ordeyned, as the sermoun of God to[q] Abraham shewide; nerthelatere[r] that theiris[rr] was, the aungelis diden, wylnende hem to sauen, that sheweden hemself vnwrthi helthe; and seiende to Loth, Is ther any man to thee heer sone in lawe, or sones, outher[s] doȝtris? ne thei vnknewen hem not `to ben[t] to folewen Loth, but thei sheweden hern[u] to gidere and his benygnete and loue that hem hadde sent. Lijc sum what in Jeremye wee finden. Notid is forsothe the tyme of his profecye, whan he gan[v], or hadde endid to[w] profecyen. Seith therfore sum man, What to me the tyme of the storie? for he began to profecien in the daȝes of Josie, sone[x] of Amos, the[y] king of Juda, vnto the threttenthe[z] ȝer in his regne[a]. Ther after he profeciede in the daȝes of Joachym, sone of Josie, the[b] king of Juda; and bi thre kingus his profecie is straȝt out, vnto the caitifte of Jerusalem. In the fifte monyth condempnede God Jerusalem for his synnes, and that was the laste sentence, that caitif thei shulden be forsake; but sithen God is the[c] makere of men, ne any man wile to pershen, bifor that[d] the tyme of destruccioun shulde stonden in, he sente and this profete, that shulde bidde to penaunce. He sente the same also vnder the secounde king[e] after the puple; he sente also vnder the thridde. Now the caitifte stod on, and ȝit to helthe God stirede, ȝyuende[f] and biforn o dai place of penaunce; wherfore it is write, vnto the caitifte of Jerusalem, and vnto the fifte moneth, to han profecied to Jerusalem. Now the[g] bondis[h] of the enemys hadden streyned the hondis, and nerthelatere this God seide, Lo! caitif ȝee ben mad, doth penaunce; thoȝ late, preȝeth me, and I shal spare to ȝou; I mai delyuere fro the caitifte, that I haue take ȝou, vn to the ful ending of the elleuenthe ȝer of Sedechie, sone of Osie, king of Juda. This also of vs wee moun vnderstonde, a synnere forsothe[i] to be taken to Sathan; no thing is ferr fro it, that Jewis ben taken to Nabugodonosor, that as[k] hem God grauntide to the[l] aduersarie for ofte vsid vnpitousnesse, so wee ben taken for oure synnes to spirituel Nabugodonosor, that whom he hath take to Sathan, thei lerne to not blasfemen. Weenest thou hou myche euel it is to synnen, that he take to Sathan, caityuende the soules of them that ben forsaken of God? not withoute cause, that is, ne with oute dom. Whan forsothe he shal sende reyn vp on the vyne, and that reyn shal bringe forth thornes, what shal he do, but that he comaunde to the[m] wederes, that thei reyne not vp on the[n] vyne weder? Nyȝ therfore[o] is and oure caitifte, if wee do not penaunce, that wee be take to Nabugodonosor, king of Babiloyne, whiche now liende[p] nyȝ, the wrdis of profetis[q], of the lawe, of the apostolis, and of the selue Crist[r] `ful out biden vs[s] to penaunce, stern to helthe. If wee heren, wee leeuen to hym that seide, I shal do penaunce of alle the[t] euelis, that I spac to do to them.

sothe Y seide, Pleynli this is my sike-

Lo! the vois of hering cometh, and a 22 greet mouynge togidere fro the lond of the north, that it sette the citees of Juda

7 this couenaunt, and doth them; for witnessende Y witnessede 3oure faders, in my loued in myn hous doth many hidschulde 3yue to hem a lond flowynge with mylk and hony, as this dai is. And Y answeride, and seide, Amen, Lord. And 6 the Lord seide to me, Crye thou alle these wordis in the citees of Juda, and with out Jerusalem, and seie thou, Here 3e the wordis of this couenaunt, and do 3e tho[z]; for Y 7 mere wickidnessis of her fadris, that nol-

Whether Ezechie, kyng of Juda, 19 and al Juda condempnede hym bi deth? Whether thei dredden not the Lord, and bisouȝten the face of the Lord? and it repentide the Lord of the yuel which he spak aȝens hem. Therfor do we not greet yuel aȝens oure soulis. Also Vrye, the 20 sone of Semey, of Cariathiarym, was a man profesiynge in the name of the Lord; and he profesiede aȝens this citee, and aȝens this lond, bi alle the wordis of Jeremye. And kyng Joachym, and alle the 21 myȝti men, and princes of hem, herden these wordis; and the kyng souȝte to sle hym; and Vrye herde, and dredde, and he fledde, and entride in to Egipt. And 22 kyng Joachym sente men in to Egipt, Elnathan, the sone of Achobor, and men with hym, in to Egipt; and thei ledden 23 Vrye out of Egipt, and brouȝten hym to kyng Joachym; and the kyng killide hym bi[m] swerd, and castide forth his careyn in the sepulcris of the comyn puple vnnoble. Therfor the hond of Aicham, sone of Sa- 24

For the Lord spak on vs alle these yuels, 7 that camen on vs. And we bisouȝten 8

CAP. XI.

And the spirit reiside me, and ledde me 1 with ynne to the eest 3ate of the hous of the Lord, that biholdith the risyng of the sunne. For a man, a man of the hous of Israel, and of proselitis, or men new comen to the lawe of Jewis, who euer shal be cumlynge, or gest, in Israel, if he shal be alienyd fro me, and shal putte his ydolis in his herte, and shal sette the sclaundre of his wickidnes a3ens his face, and shal come to the prophete, that he axe bi hym me, I the Lord shal answere to hym bi my silf.

speke thou to hem, and thou schalt seie to hem, These thingis seith the Lord God, A man, a man of the hous of Israel, that settith hise vnclennessis in his herte, and settith stidfastli the sclaundre of his wickidnesse a3ens his face, and cometh to the profete, and axith me bi hym, Y the Lord schal answere to hym in the multitude of hise vnclennessis; that the hous of Israel 5

And Y schal 8

thou multipliedist thi fornycacioun in the loond of Canaan with Caldeis, and 30 nether so thou art fulfillid. In what thing shal Y clense thin herte, seith the Lord God, whanne thou dost alle thes werkis of a[l] womman hoore, and bold to 31 hordom? For thou hast forgid thi bordel hous in the heed of eche weie, and thou madist thin hei3e thingis[m] in eche strete; nether thou art maad as an hoore anoyed, 32 or ful of werynes, encresynge prijs, but as a womman auowtresse, the whiche 33 ledith in aliens vpon hir husboond[o]. To alle hooris hijris ben 3ouen, forsothe thou hast 3ouun hijre, or mede, to alle thi loueris; and thou 3auist to hem, that thei shulden entre to thee on eche side, for to 34 doo fornycacioun with thee. And it is don in thee a3en the custom of wymmen in thi fornycaciouns, and after thee shal not be fornycacioun; forsothe in that thing that thou 3auest hijris, and resseyuedist not hijris, the[p] contrarie is don in 35 thee. Therfor, thou hoore, here the word 36 of the Lord. Thes thingis seith the Lord God, For thi monee is shed out, and thin euyl fame is shewid in thi fornycaciouns vpon[q] thi loueris and vpon[q] thin idolis of thin abomynaciouns, in the blood of thi sones, whom thou hast 3ouen to hem; 37 loo! Y shal gedre alle thi loueris, with whom thou art meynd, and alle men whom thou louedist, with alle men whom thou hatidist; and Y shal gadre hem vpon thee on eche side, and Y shal make nakid thin hond on thee, and Y schal take awei thi iustifiyng; and Y schal 3yue thee in to the soulis of hem that haten thee, of the dou3-tris of Palestyns, that ben aschamed in thi weie ful of greet trespas. And thou didist 28 fornicacioun with the sones of Assiriens, for thou were not fillid 3it; and after that thou didist fornicacioun, nether so thou were fillid. And thou multipliedist thi 29 fornycacioun in the lond of Canaan with Caldeis, and nether so thou were fillid.
In what thing schal Y clense thin herte, 30 seith the Lord God, whanne thou doist alle these werkis of a womman an hoore, and gredi axere? For thou madist thi 31 bordel hous in `the heed of ech[v] weie, and thou madist thin hi3 place in ech street; and thou were not maad as an hoore ful of anoiyng[w], encreessynge prijs, but as 32 a womman auowtresse, that bryngith in aliens on hir hosebonde. Hiris ben 3ouun 33 to alle hooris, but thou hast 3oue hire to alle thi louyeris; and thou 3auest to hem, that thei schulden entre to thee on ech side, to do fornycacioun with thee. And 34 it was don in thee a3ens the custom of wymmen in thi fornycaciouns, and fornicacioun schal not be after thee; for in that that thou 3auest hiris, and tokist not hiris, the contrarie was don in thee. Therfor, 35 thou hoore, here the word of the Lord.
The Lord God seith these thingis, For thi 36 riches is sched out, and thi schenschipe is schewid in thi fornicaciouns on thi louyeris, and on the idols of thin abhomynaciouns[x], in the blood of thi sones, whiche thou 3auest to hem; lo! Y schal 37 gadere to gidere alle thi[y] louyeris, with whiche thou were meddlid, and alle men whiche thou louedist, with alle men whiche thou hatidist; and Y schal gadere hem on thee on ech side, and Y schal make nakid thi schenschipe bifore hem, and thei schulen se al thi filthe. And Y schal deme thee 38 shulen distruye thi bordel hous, and thei shulen make thee nakid fro thi clothis, and shulen take awei the vesselis of thi shulen lede to vpon thee a multitude, and thei shulen stoone thee with stoonus,

Wherfor and Y haue 3ouen thi weies in dide not after thi greet trespassis, in alle 44 thin[s] abomynaciouns. Loo! eche man that seith euery where, or comounli, a prouerbe in thee, shal take it to, seiynge, 45 As the modir, so and hir dou3ter. Thou art the do3ter of thi modir, which castide the sister of thi sistris, whiche castiden awey her husbondis and her sones. Thi modir Cethei, and thi fader Ammorrei; hir dou3tris, that dwellen at thi left side.

Forsothe thi sister lasse than thou, that dwellith at thi ri3t half, Sodom and hir[t] 47 dou3tris. But nether thou hast gon in the weies of hem, nether thou hast don after her[u] grete trespassis; almest a litil the[z] blood of strong veniaunce, and of feruour. And Y schal 3yue thee in to the hondis of hem, and thei schulen destrie thi bordel hous, and thei schulen destrie the place of thin hordom; and thei schulen make thee nakid of thi clothis, and thei schulen take awei the vessels of thi fair-schulen sle thee with her swerdis. And 41 thei schulen brenne thin housis with fier, and thei schulen make domes in thee, bi-for the i3en of ful many wymmen; and thou schalt ceese to do fornicacioun, and thou schalt no more 3yue hiris. And myn 42 indignacioun schal reste in thee, and my feruent loue schal be takun awei fro thee; and Y schal reste, and Y schal no more be wrooth, for thou haddist not mynde 43 and thou terridist me to ire in alle these thingis. Wherfor and Y 3af thi weies in thin heed, seith the Lord God, and Y[a] dide not aftir thi grete trespassis, in alle these thin abhomynaciouns. Lo! ech man 44 that seith a prouerbe comynli, schal take the Lord God, for Sodom, thi sister, dide not, she and hir dou3tris, as thou didist wickidnes of Sodom, thi sister, prijde, and fulnes of breed, or glotonye, and abound-daunce, or plente, and idilnes of hir, and hir dou3tris; and thei dressiden not the Therfor and thou be confoundid, and ber

Sodom, thi sister, was not herde in thi thi malice was shewid, as in this tyme, in thingis seith the Lord God, And I shal doo to thee as thou dispisedist the ooth, that thou madist the couenaunt voyd; Lo! this was the wickidnesse of Sodom, 49 thi sister, pride, fulnesse of breed, and

For sche multiplied hir fornicaciouns, and 19

26 And thei shulen vnclothe thee thi clothis, and shulen take awei the vessels of thi

28 For thes thingis seith the Lord God, Loo! Y shal bitake thee in to the hoondis of hem whom thou hatidist, in to the hoondis of whyche thi soule is fulfillid.
29 And thei shulen doo with thee in haate, and thei shulen take alle thi traueilis, and shulen leeue thee nakid, and ful of euyl fame; and the euyl fame of thi fornycaciouns, shal be shewid. Thi greet

31 Thou wandridist[q] in the weye of thi sistir, and Y shal 3yue the cuppe of hir

33 Thou shalt be fulfillid with drunkenes and sorewe, the cuppe of mournynge and heuynes, the cuppe of thi sister Samarie.
34 And thou shalt drynke it, and drynke of vn to the drestis, and thou shalt deuoure the relyues of it, and thou shalt to-teere thi breestis, for I spak, seith the Lord reste fro thee, and thi fornicacioun fro the lond of Egipt; and thou schalt not reise thin i3en to hem, and thou schalt no more haue mynde on Egipt. For the 28 Lord God seith these thingis, Lo! Y schal 3yue thee in to the hondis of hem whiche thou hatist, 'in to[l] the hondis of hem of whiche thi soule was fillid, and thei schu- 29 thingis to thee; for thou didist fornicacioun aftir hethene men, among whiche thou were defoulid in the idols of hem. Thou 3edist in the weie of thi sister, and 31

Y schal 3yue the cuppe of hir in thin hond. The Lord God seith these thingis, 32 Thou schalt drinke the cuppe of thi sistir, the depthe, and the broodnesse; thou that art most able to take, schalt be in to scornyng, and in to mouwyng. Thou 33 schalt be fillid with drunkenesse and sorewe, with the cuppe of mourenyng and of heuynesse, with the cuppe of thi sister Samarie. And thou schalt drynke it, and 34 thou schalt drinke of til to the drastis, and thou schalt deuoure the relifs therof, and thou schalt to-reende thi brestis, for Y the Lord spak, seith the Lord God. Therfor the Lord God seith these thingis, 35
For thou hast for3ete me, and hast cast forth me bihynde thi bodi, bere thou also thi greet trespas and thi fornicaciouns. And the Lord God seide to me, and spak, 36 38 gendriden to me. But and this thing thei diden to me, thei defouleden my seyntuaries in that dai, and thei pro-phaneden, or maden vnhooli, my sabotis.

39 And whanne thei offreden her sonys to her ydolis, and entriden my seyntuarie in that day, for to defoule it, and also thei diden thes thingis in the mydil of myn

But also thei diden this to 38 me, thei defouleden my seyntuarie in that dai, and maden vnhooli my sabatis. And 39 whanne thei sacrifisiden her sones to her idols, and entriden in to my seyntuarie in that dai, that thei schulden defoule it, thei diden also these thingis in the myddis of myn hous. 2 thou of the schepherdis of Israel, profesie thou; and thou schalt seie to the schepherdis, The Lord God seith these thingis, Wo to the schepherdis of Israel, that fedden hym silf; whether flockis ben not fed of schepherdis? ȝe eeten mylk, and weren 3 hilid with wollis, and ȝe killiden that that was fat; but ȝe fedden not my floc. ȝe

5 And my scheep weren scaterid, for no sheepherde was; and thei weren maad in to deououryng of alle beestis of the feeld, and thei weren scaterid. My flockis err-

the Lord, The Lord God seith these thingis, 10 Lo! Y my silf[s] am ouer scheepherdis; Y schal seke my floc of the hond of hem, and Y schal make hem to ceesse, that thei fede no more my flok, and that the[t] scheepherdis feede no more hem silf. And Y schal delyuere my floc fro the mouth of hem, and it schal no more be in to mete to hem. For the Lord God seith these thingis, Lo! 11
Y my silf schal seke my scheep, and Y schal visite hem. As a scheepherde visitith 12

CAP. XXXV.

1 And the word of the Lord is maad to 2 me, sayinge, Sone of man, putte thou thi face aȝeins the mount of Seir; and thou shalt prophecie to it, and shalt saye to 3 it, These thingis saith the Lord God, Loo! I to thee, mount of Seir; I shal strecche out myn hond vpon thee, and 4 I schal ȝiue thee desolat and desert. I schal distrye thi citees, and thou schalt be desert; and thou schalt wite, for I the 5 Lord. For that that thou was an enmy euer lastynge, and closidist to gydre the sones of Yrael in to hondis[u] of swerd, in the tyme of her afflicciouu, in the tyme 6 of the last wickidnesse; therfore Y lyue, saith the Lord God, for I shal bitake thee to blood, and blood shal pursue thee; and whann thou hatist bloode, blood shal 7 pursue thee. And I shal ȝeue the hil of Seir desolat and desert, and I shal take awey fro it a man goynge and turnynge 8 aȝein; and I shal fulfille the hillis of it with careyns of slayn men. In thi litil hillis, and in thi valeis, and in rennynge brokis of reyn, men slayn in swerd shuln 9 falle doun. I shal bytake thee into wildernessis euerlastynge, and thi citees shuln not be enabitid; and ȝe shuln wite, 10 for I the Lord God. For that that thou saidist, Two folkis and two londis shuln be myn, and bi eritage I shal weelde 11 hem, whan the Lord was there; therfore I lyue, saith the Lord God, for I shal do after thi wrath, and after thin enuye, whiche thou didist, hauynge hem in hate, and I shal be maad knowen by 12 hem, when I shal deeme thee; and thou shalt wite, for I the Lord. Y herde alle her Lord God with hem, and thei ben my puple, the hous of Israel, seith the Lord God. Forsothe ȝe my flockis ben men, 31 the flockis of my lesewe; and Y am ȝoure Lord God, seith the Lord God.

CAP. XXXV.

And the word of the Lord was maad to 1 me, and he seide, Thou, sone of man, sette 2 thi face aȝens the hil of Seir; and thou schalt profesie to it, and thou schalt seie to it, The Lord God seith these thingis, 3 Thou hil of Seir, lo! Y to thee; Y schal stretche forth myn hond on thee, and Y schal ȝyue thee desolat and forsakun. Y 4 schal distrie thi citees, and thou schalt be forsakun; and thou schalt wite, that Y am the Lord. For thou were an enemye euer- 5 lastynge, and closidist togidere the sonis of Israel in to the hondis of swerd, in the tyme of her turment, in the tyme of the laste wickidnesse; therfor Y lyue, seith the 6 Lord God, for Y schal ȝyue thee to blood, and blood schal pursue thee; and sithen thou hatidist blood, blood schal pursue thee. And Y schal ȝyue the hil of Seir 7 desolat and forsakun, and Y schal take awei fro it a goere and a comere aȝen; and Y schal fille the hillis therof with 8 the careyns of her slayn men. Men slayn by swerd schulen falle doun in thi litle hillis, and in thi valeys, and in thi[g] strondis. Y schal ȝyue thee in to euer- 9 lastynge wildirnessis, and thi citees schulen not be enhabitid; and ȝe schulen wite, that Y am the Lord God. For thou seid- 10 ist, Twei folkis and twei londis schulen be myne, and Y schal welde tho bi eritage, whanne the Lord was there; ther- 11 for Y lyue, seith the Lord God, for Y schal do bi thi wraththe, and bi thin enuye, which thou didist, hatinge hem, and Y schal be made knowun bi hem, whanne Y schal deme thee; and thou schalt wite, 12 that Y am the Lord. 14 These thingis saith the Lord God, All erthe gladynge, I shal dryue thee in to 15 wildrenesse. As thou ioyedist vpon the eritage of the hous of Yrael, for that it was scatered, so I shal do to thee; the hill of Seir shal be scatered, and al Ydume; and thei shuln wite, for I the Lord.

CAP. XXXVI.

1 Forsothe thou, sone of man, prophecie vpon the mounteyns of Yrael; and thou shalt saye, Hillis of Yrael, heere ȝe the 2 word of the Lord. These thingis saith the Lord God, For that that the enmye saide of ȝou, Wele! or scorne, heeȝnessis[o] euerlastynge ben ȝouen to vs in to eritage;
3 therfore prophecie thou, and saye, These thingus saith the Lord God, For that that ȝe ben desolat and defoulid by cumpas, and maad in to eritage to other folkis, and ȝee steiȝiden vp vpon the lipp of 4 tunge, and shendship of peple; therfore, ȝe hillis of Yrael, heere[v] the word of the Lord God. These thingis saith the Lord God to mounteyns, and smale hillis, to rennynge stremys of reyn, and valeys, and to desert wallingus, and to forsaken citees, that ben robbid, and scornyd of 5 other heithen men bi cumpas; therfore these thingus saith the Lord God, For in the fijr of my wrath I spake of other heithen men, and of al Ydume, that ȝauen my lond to hem in to eritage in swerd, and al the herte, and of inwit, and castiden out it, that thei shulden waaste;
6 therfore prophecie thou vpon the erth of Yrael, and thou shalt saye to mounteyns, and smale hillis, to heiȝthis of hillis, and valeys, These thingis saith the Lord God, For that that ȝe ben desolat, loo! I in my wrath and in my woodnesse haue spoken. For that that ȝe susteyneden schenschipis, whiche thou spakist of the hillis of Israel, and seidist, The hillis of Israel ben forsakun, and ben ȝouun to vs, for to deuoure. And ȝe han rise on me 13 with ȝoure mouth, and ȝe han deprauyd aȝens me; Y herde ȝoure wordis. The 14 Lord God seith these thingis, While al the lond is glad, Y schal turne thee in to wildernesse. As thou haddist ioie on the 15 eritage of the hous of Israel, for it was distried, so Y schal do to thee; the hil of Seir schal be distried, and al Ydumee; and thei schulen wite, that Y am the Lord.

here ȝe the word of the Lord God. The Lord God seith these thingis to the mounteyns, and litle hillis, to strondis, and to valeis, and to peecis of wallis left, and to citees forsakun, that ben maad bare of puplis, and ben scorned of othere folkis bi cumpas; therfore the Lord God seith 5 these thingis, For in the fier of my feruour Y spak of othere folkis, and of al Idumee, that ȝauen my lond in to eritage to hem silf with ioie and al herte, and of entent, and castiden out it, to distrie it; therfor profesie thou on the erthe of Is- 6 mown not shewe to the kyng. Bot ther is God in heuen, shewynge mysteries, whiche shewide[g] to thee, thou kyng Nabugodonosor, whiche thingus ben to cum in the last tymes. Thi swenens and visions of thin hed, in thi couche, ben siche. Thou, kyng, biganst for to thinke in thi bed, what thing was to cummynge after these thingus; and he that shewith mysteries[h], shewide to thee what thingus ben to cummynge. And this sacrament, or hid trewthe, is shewid, not in wisdam that is in me more than in alle lyuynge men, bot that the interpretacioun be shewid to the kyng, and that thou shuldist wite the thouȝtis of thi soule. Thou, kyng, hast seen, and loo! as oo grete ymage; thilk ymage grete, and in stature hiȝ, stode aȝeinus thee, and the biholdyng therof was dreedful. The hed of this ymage was of best gold, forsothe the brest and armys of syluer; forsothe the wombe and thiȝes of brasse, sothely the leggis of yren; forsothe of the feet sum part of yren, sum of erthe. Thou hast seen thus, til a stoon was kit of, with outen hondis, of a mount, and smote the ymage in his feet of yren and erthe, and made lesse, or brake, hem. Thanne the yren, pott, or mater maad of erthe, brasse, syluer, and gold, ben broken to gidre, and dryuen as in to a qwenchid brond of somer feeld, whiche ben rauyshid with wynd, and no place is foundun in hem; forsothe the stoon that smote the ymage, is maad a grete mounteyn, and fulfillide al erthe. This is the sweuen. And we shuln saye the interpretacioun therof bifore the kyng. Thou art kyng of kyngus, and God of heuen ȝaue to thee kingdam, strengthe, and empire, or lordship, and glorie, and alle thingus in whiche sones of men dwellen, and beestis of the feeld; and he ȝaue in thin hond the foulis of heuen, and ordeynyde alle thingus vndir thi lordship; therfor thou art the golden Thou, kyng, bigunnest to thenke in thi bed, what was to comynge aftir these thingis; and he that schewith priuetees, schewide to thee what thingis schulen come. And this sacrament is schewid to me, not bi wisdom which is in me more than in alle lyuynge men, but that the interpretyng schulde be maad opyn to the kyng, and thou schuldist knowe the thouȝtis of thi soule. Thou, kyng, siȝest, and lo! as o greet ymage; thilke ymage was greet, and hiȝ in stature, and stood bifore thee, and the loking therof was ferdful. The heed of this ymage was of best gold, but the brest and armes weren of siluer; certis the wombe and thies weren of bras, but the leggis weren of irun; forsothe sum part of the feet was of irun, sum was of erthe. Thou siȝest[i] thus, til a stoon was kit doun of the hil, with outen hondis, and smoot the ymage in the irun feet therof and erthene feet[k], and al to-brak tho. Thanne the irun, tijl stoon, ether erthene vessel, bras, siluer, and gold, weren al to-brokun togidere, and dryuun as in to a deed sparcle of a large somer halle, that ben rauyschid of wynd, and no place is foundun to tho; forsothe the stoon, that smoot the ymage, was maad a greet hil, and fillide al erthe. This is the dreem. Also, thou kyng, we schulen seie bifor thee the interpretyng therof. Thou art kyng of kyngis, and God of heuene ȝaf to thee rewme, strengthe, and empire, and glorie; and he ȝaf in thin hond alle thingis, in whiche the sones of men, and the beestis of the feeld, and the briddis of the eir dwellen, and ordeynede alle thingis vndur thi lordschip; therfor thou art the goldun heed. And another rewme lesse than thou schal rise aftir thee; and the thridde rewme, an other of bras, that schal haue the empire of al erthe. And the fourthe rewme schal be as irun, as irun makith lesse, and makith tame alle thingis, so it schal make lesse,

And the fourthe rewme shal be as yrunny[h]; hou yrun brekith to gydre alle thingus, and dauntith, or tamith, so it shal menushe, and to gydre breke alle these thingus. Forsothe thou hast seen of the feete and fyngris erthi[i], or cleyi[k], part of a potter, and a part of yren, the rewme shal be departid; whiche neuerthelese shal sprynge of the plauntyng of yren, after that thou hast seen yren meynt of cleye and tyel, and fingris, or toon, of feet in partie of yren, in partie of erthe, the rewme in party shal be sad, and in party debrusid. Sothely that thou hast seen yren meynt to tyel of cley, forsothe thei shuln be meynt to gidre by mans seed; bot thei shuln not cleue to hem self, as yren may not be meynt to tyel. Forsothe in the days of tho rewmes, God of heuen shal reyse a kyngdam, whiche shal not be distruyed in to with outen eende, and his rewme shal not be taken to an other peple; it shal make lesse, and waste alle these rewmes, and the ylk shal stonde in to with outen eende. Vp that that thou saw3, that a stoon is kit off with outen hondis of an hill, and maad lesse, or brake, the tyel, and yren, and bras, and syluer, and gold, the grete God shewide to 'the kyng[l]', what thingus ben to cummynge afterward; and the sweuen is trewe, and the interpretacioun therof feithful. Than kyng Nabuchodonosor felle in to his face, and wirshipide Danyel, and comaundide sacrifices and encense, that it were offride to hym. Therfore the kyng spekynge saith to Danyel, Verreli 3our God is God of goddis, and Lord of kyngus, shewinge mysteries, for thou mi3tist opne this sacrament. Thann the kyng enhaunside in to hee3 and schal al to-breke alle these rewmes. Forsothe that thou siest a part of the feet and fyngris of erthe of a pottere, and a part of irun, the rewme shal be departid; which netheles schal rise of the plauntyng of irun, 'bi that[l]' that thou siest irun meynd with a tijl stoon of clei, and the toos of the feet in parti of irun, and in parti of erthe, in parti the rewme schal be sad, and in parti to-brokun. Forsothe that thou siest irun meynd with a tiel stoon of clei, sotheli tho schulen be meynd togidere with mannus seed; but tho schulen not cleue to hem silf, as irun mai not be meddlid with tyel stoon. Forsothe in the daies of tho[m] rewmes, God of heuene shal reise a rewme, that schal not be distried with outen ende, and his rewme schal not be 3ouun to another puple; it schal make lesse, and schal[n] waste alle these rewmes, and it schal stonde with outen ende, bi this that thou siest, that a stoon was kit doun of the hil with outen hondis, and maad lesse the tiel stoon, and irun, and bras, and siluer, and gold. Greet God hath schewid to the kyng, what thingis schulen come aftirward; and the dreem is trewe, and the interpretyng therof is feithful. Thanne king Nabugodonosor felle doun on his face, and worschipide Danyel, and comaundide sacrifices and encense to be brou3t, that tho schulden be sacrifised[o] to hym. Therfor the kyng spak, and seide to Danyel, Verili 3oure God is God of goddis, and Lord of kyngis, that schewith mysteries, for thou mi3tist opene this sacrament. 1 I, Nabugodonosor, was quyete in myn
2 hous, and flouringe[nn] in my paleys; I saw3 a sweuen, whiche feride me; and my thou3tis in my bed, and si3tis of myn hed,

4 sweuene. Thanne entriden dyuynours by auters, wicches[o], Caldeis, and dyuynours by sterris; and I teelde the swenen in the si3t of hem, and thei shewiden not to me
5 the solucioun therof, til a felowe of office entride in my si3t, Danyel, to whom the name Balthasar, after the name of my god, whiche hath the spirit of holy goddis in hym self; and I spac the sweuen bi-6 fore hym. Balthasar, prince of dyuynours by autris, whom I wote, for thou hast in thee the spirit of holy goddis, and eche sacrament is not impossible to thee, telle thou to me the visions[p] of my 7 sweuens, and the solucioun of hem. The visioun of myn hed in my couche. I saw3, and loo! a tree in the mydil of erthe, 8 and the hei3t therof ful myche. And a greete tree and stronge, and the nobley, or strecchinge out, therof touchynge heuen, biholding therof was vnto termes of 9 al erthe. The leues therof most faire, and the fruyte therof ful myche, and mete of alle thingus theryn; vnder it beestis dwelliden, and wijlde beestis, and in bowis therof briddis of heuen lyuyden, 10 and eche fleshe eete of it. Thus I saw3 in si3t of myn heued, vpon my bed. And loo! the waker, and holy came doun from 11 heuen, and criede strongli, and thus saith, Kitte 3e doun the tree, and bifore kitte ueils, for tho ben stronge; and his rewme is an[q] euerlastynge rewme, and his power is in generacioun and in to generacioun.
1 I, Nabugodonosor, was restful in myn hous, and flourynge in my paleis; Y si3

3 set forth bi me, that alle the wise men of Babiloyne schulden be brou3t in bifor my si3t, and that thei schulden schewe to me the soilyng of the dreem. Than false dy-4 uynours, astronomyens[r], Caldeis, and biholderis of auteris entriden; and Y telde the dreem in the si3t of hem, and thei schewiden not to me the soilyng therof, til the felowe in office, Danyel, to whom kyng, si3 this dreem. Therfor thou, Balthasar, telle hastili the interpretyng, for alle the wise men of my rewme moun not seie to me the soilyng; but thou maist, for the spirit of hooli goddis is in thee. Thanne 16 Danyel, to whom the name was Balthasar, began to thenke priueli with ynne hym silf, as in oon our, and hise thou3tis disturbliden hym. Forsothe the kyng answeride, and seide, Balthasar, the dreem and the interpretyng therof disturble not thee. Forsothe that the kyng saw3 the waker and hooly for to cum doun fro heuen, and for to saye, Kitte 3e doun the tree, and scatre 3e[t] it, nethelese leue the buriownyng of rootys therof in erthe, and be he bounden in yren and brasse, and in erbis with out forth, and dew of heuen be it spreyn to gydre, and with wylde beestis be his mete, til seuen tymes be chaungid vpon 21 hym; this is the interpretacioun of sentence of the heei3ist, that came fully vpon

22 my lord kyng. Thei shuln cast thee out fro men, and with beestus and wijlde beestis thi dwellyng shal be, and thou shalt ete hay as an oxe, bot and in dewe of heuen thou shalt be inshed, and seuene tymes shuln be chaungid vpon thee, til thou wite, that the hey3 lordshipith vpon rewme of men, and he 3euith it to whom euer he shal wiln.
23 Forsothe that he comaundide, that buriownyng of rootis therof, that is to saye, of the tree, shulde be left, thi rewme shal dwelle to thee, after that thou shalt

26 camen on Nabugodonosor, kyng. After the eende of twelue monethis in the halle 27 of Babiloyne he walkide; and the kyng answerde and saith, Wher this not Babyloyne, the grete citee, whiche I beeldide in to the hous of rewme, in[u] mi3t of my strengthe, and in glorie of my fairnesse?
28 Therfore whann 3it the word was in the kyngus mouthe, a voice felle fro heuen, To thee it is said, kyng Nabugodonosor, 29 Thi rewme passith fro thee, and fro men thei shuln caste out thee, and with beestis and wijlde beestis thi dwellyng shal be; thou shalt ete hay as an oxe, and seuen tymes shuln be chaungid vpon thee, til seed of rootis therof in erthe, and be he boundun with irun and bras, in erbis with out forth, and be he bispreynt with the deew of heuene, and his mete be with wielde beestis, til seuene tymes be chaungid on hym; this is the interpretyng of 21 the sentence of the hi3este, which sentence is comun on my lord, the kyng. Thei 22 schulen caste thee out fro men, and thi dwellyng schal be with beestys and wielde beestis, and thou schalt ete hey, as an oxe doith, but also thou schalt be bisched with the dew of heuene, also seuene tymes schulen be chaungid on thee, til thou knowe, that hi3 God is Lord 'on the[f] rewme[g] of men, and 3yueth it to whom euer he wole. Forsothe that he comaundide, that the 23 seed of rootis therof, that is, of the tree, schulde be left, thi rewme schal dwelle to thee, aftir that thou knowist that the power is of heuene. Wherfor, kyng, my 24 counsel plese thee, and a3enbie thi synnes with almesdedis, and a3enbie thi wickidnessis with mercies of pore men; in hap God schal for3yue thi trespassis. Alle 25 these thingis camen on Nabugodonosor, the[h] kyng. After the ende of twelue 26 seide, Whether this is not Babiloyne, the greet citee, which Y bildide in to the hous of rewme, in the mi3t of my strengthe, and in the glorie of my fairnesse? Whanne 28

Thanne alle the wise men of the kyng entriden, and miʒten not rede the scripture, nether schewe to the kyng the interpretyng therof. Now therfore Danyel be clepid, and he 13 shal telle the interpretacioun. Therfore Danyel is brouȝt yn byfore the kyng. To whom the forsaid king saith, Thou art Danyel of 'the sonys of caytiftee[a] of Jude, whom my fadre, kyng, ledde to fro 14 Jude? Y herde of thee, for thou hast in thee the spirit of goddis, and science, and vndirstondynge, and wisdam gretter ben 15 founden in thee. And now wijse men, witches, entreden in my siȝt, for to reede this writyng, and for to shew to me the interpretacioun therof; and thei miȝten not saye out to me the wit of this word. 16 Forsothe I herde of thee, that thou mayst interprete derke thingis, and vnbynde bounden thingus; therfore ȝif thou maist reede the wrijtyng, and shewe to me the[b] interpretacioun therof, thou shalt be clothid with purpre, and thou shalt have a golden bee aboute thi nek, and thou shalt be the thridde prince in my rewme. 17 To whiche thingus Danyel answerynge saith byfore the kyng, Thi ȝiftis be to thee, and ȝeue thou to an other the ȝiftus of thin hous; forsothe, kyng, I shal reede to thee the wrytyng, and I shal shewe 18 interpretacioun therof to thee, thou kyng. The heeȝist God ȝaue rewme, and magnyficence, glorie, and honour to Na- 19 bugodonosor, thi fadir. And for the[c] magnificence whiche he ȝaue to hym alle peplis, lynagis, and tungis, trembliden and dredden hym; he slowȝ whom he wolde, and whom he wolde he smote, and whom he wolde he enhaunside, and 20 whom he wolde he meekide. Now therfor Daniel be clepid, and he schal telle the interpretyng. Therfor Daniel was brouȝt in bifor the kyng. To whom the forseid kyng seide, Art thou Danyel, of the sones 13 of caitifte[r] of Juda, whom my fader, the kyng, brouȝte fro Judee? Y haue herd of 14 thee, that thou hast in thee the spirit of goddis, and more kunnyng, and vndurstondyng, and wisdom be foundun in thee. And now wise men, astronomyens[s], en- 15 triden in my siȝt, to rede this scripture, and to schewe to me the interpretyng therof; and thei myȝten not seie to me the vndurstondyng of this word. Certis 16 Y haue herde of thee, that thou maist interprete derk thingis, and vnbynde boundun thingis; therfor if thou maist rede the scripture, and schewe to me the interpretyng therof, thou schalt be clothid in purpur, and thou schalt haue a goldun bie aboute thi necke, and thou schalt be the thridde prince in my rewme. To 17 whiche[t] thingis Danyel answeride, and seide bifore the kyng, Thi ȝiftis be to thee, and ȝyue thou to another man the ȝiftis of thin hous; forsothe, kyng, Y schal rede the scripture to thee, and Y schal schewe to thee the interpretyng therof. Therfore fro hym the fyngre of an[g] hond is sente, whiche wrote 25 this thing that is writen. Forsothe this is the wrytyng that is ordeyned, Mane, 26 Techel, Phares. And this interpretacioun of the word. Mane, God hath noumbride thi rewme, and fulfillid it; 27 Techel, it is hangid in a balaunce, and 28 is founden hauynge lesse; Phares, thi kyngdam is departid, and is 3ouen to 29 Medis and to[h] Persis. Thanne, the kyng comaundynge, Danyel is clothid with purpre, and a gold bee is 3ouen aboute in his nek; and it is prechid of hym, that he hadde power, he the thrid in his 30 rewme. Forsothe whanne 20 his herte was reisid, and his spirit was maad obstynat in[w] pride, he was put doun of the seete of his rewme; and his glorie 21 was takun awei, and he was cast out fro the sones of men; but also his herte was set with beestis, and his dwellyng was with wielde assis; also he eet hei as an oxe doith, and his bodi was colourid with the deew of heuene, til he knewe, that the hi3este hath power in the rewme of men, and he schal reise on it whom euer he wole. And thou, Balthasar, the sone 22 of hym, mekidest not thin herte, whanne thou knewist alle these thingis; but thou 23 were reisid a3ens the Lord of heuene, and the vessels of his hous weren brou3t bifore thee, and thou, and thi beste men, and thi wyues, and thi concubyns, drunken wyn in tho vessels; and thou heriedist goddis of siluer, and of gold, and of bras, and of irun, and of tree, and of stoon, that seen not, nether heren, nether feelen; certis thou glorifiedist not God, that hath thi blast, and alle thi weies in his hond. Therfor the fyngur of the[x] hond was sent 24 of hym, which hond wroot this thing that is writun. Sotheli this is the scripture 25 which is discryued, Mane, Techel, Phares. And this is the interpretyng of the word. 26 Mane, God hath noumbrid thi rewme, and hath fillid it; Techel, thou art weied in 27 a balaunce, and thou art foundun hauynge lesse; Phares, thi rewme is departid, and 28 is 3ouun to Medeis and Perseis[y]. Thanne, 29 for the kyng comaundide, Daniel was clothid in purpur, and a goldun bie was 3ouun aboute in[z] his necke; and it was prechid of hym, that he hadde power, and was the thridde in the rewme. Thanne the kyng comaundide, and thei ledden to Danyel, and senten hym into the lake of lyouns. And the kyng sayde to Danyel, Thi God, whom thou wirshipidist euermore, he shal delyuere thee. Y bihelde the hornes, and lo! an other 8 litil horn cam forth of the myddis of tho, and thre of the firste hornes weren drawun i3en of a man weren in this horn, and a the dom sat, and bookis weren opened.

Y bihelde for the vois of grete wordis 11 came fro the west vpon the face of al erthe, and touchide not the erthe; forsothe the buk hadde a noble horn bitwixe

7 strengthe. And whenn he neiȝede niȝ the wether, he dide crueli in to hym, and he smote the wether, and he brake to gidre two hornys of hym, and the wether miȝte not withstonde hym. And when he sente hym in to the erthe, he defoulide hym; and no man miȝte delyuere the wether of 8 his hond. Forsothe the buk of geet is maad grete ful miche; and whan he hadde waxen, the grete horn is brosten, and foure horns ben brouȝt forth vndir 9 it, bi foure wyndis of heuen. Eftsoone forsothe of hem oo litil horne wente out, and it is maad grete aȝeinus the south, and aȝeinus the eest, and aȝeinus strengthe.
10 And it is magnyfied vnto the strengthe of heuen, and castide doun of strengthe 11 and of sterris, and defoulide hem. And vnto the prince of strengthe he is magnyfied, and fro hym he toke the contynuel sacrifice, and castide doun the 13 haue prosperite, and shal do. And Y herde oon of the saintus spekynge; and oo saynt saide to an other, Y noote to whom spekynge, Hou longe deuysioun, and the contynuel sacrifice, and synne of desolacioun, or discoumfort, that is maad, and sayntuarie, and strengthe shal be de-14 foulid? And he saide to hym, Vnto euenyng and morewnynge, days two thousand and three hundred; and the sayntuarie 15 shal be clensid. Forsothe it is don, when Y, Danyel, sawe the visioun, and souȝte vndirstondyng, loo! there stode in my 16 siȝt as the fourme of man. And Y herde a voice of the man bytwixe Vlay, and he criede, and saith, Gabriel, make thou this the erthe; forsothe the buk of geet hadde a noble horn bitwixe hise iȝen; and he 6 cam til to that horned ram, which Y hadde seyn stondynge bifore the ȝate, and he ran in the fersnesse of his strengthe to that ram. And whanne he hadde neiȝid 7 niȝ the ram, he hurlide[h] fersly on hym, and he smoot the ram, and al to-brak tweyne hornes of hym, and the ram miȝte not aȝenstonde hym. And whanne he hadde sent that ram in to erthe, he defoulide; and no man miȝte delyuere the ram fro his hond. Forsothe the buk of 8 geet was maad ful greet; and whanne he hadde encreessid, the greet horn was brokun, and foure hornes risiden vndur it, bi foure wyndis of heuene. Forsothe 9 of oon of hem ȝede out o litil horn, and it was maad greet aȝens the south, and aȝens the eest, and aȝens the strengthe. And it 10 was magnefied til to the strengthe of heuene, and it castide doun of the strengthe and[i] of sterris, and defoulide tho. Forsothe strengthe 12 was ȝouun to hym aȝens the contynuel sacrifice for synnes, and treuthe schal be cast doun in erthe; and he schal haue prosperite, and schal do. And Y herde 13 oon of hooli aungels spekynge; and oon hooli aungel seide to another, Y noot to whom spekinge, Hou long the visioun, and the[k] contynuel sacrifice, and the synne of desolacioun, which is maad, and the seyntuarie, and the strengthe schal be defoulid? 20 tyme hath his eende. The wether, or ram, whom thou hast seen for to haue hornys, is the kyng of Medis and Persis.

21 Forsothe the geet buk is the king of Grekis; and the grete horn that was bi-22 twix his ee3en, is the first kyng. Forsothe that, it broken, foure han rysen for it, foure kyngus shuln to gydre ryse of that folc, bot not in the strengthe of 26 And the visioun, that is said in euening and morewnyng, is trewe. Therefore seale thou, or marke, the visyoun, for kyng of Grekis; and the greet horn that was bitwixe hise i3en, he is the firste kyng. Forsothe that whanne that horn 22 was brokun, foure hornes risiden for it, foure kyngis schulen rise of the folc of hym, but not in the strengthe of hym. And after the rewme of hem, whanne 23
